

Global Islam and China's Muslim Problem: From Confrontation to Sinicization in Xinjiang

Dru C. Gladney

Dru C. Gladney is Professor and Chair of Anthropology at Pomona College in Claremont, California and recent President of the Pacific Basin Institute. In addition to a Ph.D. in Social Anthropology from the University of Washington, Seattle, Dr. Gladney has three M.A. degrees in religion, philosophy, and anthropology. He has also held faculty positions and post-doctoral fellowships at Cambridge University, Harvard University, China Minzu University, Shanghai University for Politics and Law, the University of Southern California, the University of Hawai'i and the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton. He has served as the inaugural Dean of the Asia-Pacific Center for Security Studies in Honolulu and is currently a Senior Fellow at the Foreign Policy Research Institute in Philadelphia. After studying Mandarin in Peking University in 1982, he conducted fieldwork in Western China as a Fulbright Scholar at the Central Nationalities University and Ningxia Academy of Social Sciences (1983-85). He is author of the award-winning book, Muslim Chinese: Ethnic Nationalism in the People's Republic (Harvard University Press, 1996, 2nd edition) as well as Ethnic Identity in China: The Making of a Muslim Minority Nationality (Wadsworth, 1998); Making Majorities: Constituting the Nation in Japan, China, Korea, Malaysia, Fiji, Turkey, and the U.S. (Editor, Stanford University Press, 1998); and Dislocating China: Muslims, Minorities, and Other Sub-Altern Subjects (Chicago University Press, 2004). His research has been regularly featured in interviews on CNN, CBS, NPR, BBC, Al Jazeera, Russia Today, and CCTV.

February 3rd, 2021
6:30PM - 8:30PM

Click Here to Register

